Letters Home from Iceland

Through a travelogue, Rick Ray takes us into the wilds of Iceland to see a country that is misunderstood. Not all that icy (Greenland is the icy one), Rick finds humor and insight in a land populated by fishermen-poets, hard drinking artists and lots of lava and geysers.

10-noonWriter's Workshop

Writing Your Life Stories

You don't have to be a professional "writer" to write your life stories or family history. This workshop teaches easy techniques to get you started.

(Limit 18 - Sign up in Library)

7 pmChristina Sunley Presentation

How I Fell in Love with Iceland

Christina Sunley

grew up hearing stories about her Icelandic relatives and their journey to North America following a devastating volcanic eruption in 1875. In this lively presentation, she will share dramatic photographs of Iceland as she tells about the novel-writing quest that took her deep into the land of her ancestors.
